Sweet flowers, the thoughts that you inspire
Are like the songs of some far choir. That softly steal through lengthening asieles
To turn our tears to trembling smiles. And make us feel that time will brisk for every year its budding spring. Its soothing baim to every breast. To every hearth its welcome guest.

POETRY

PANSIES.

Bright pansies, born to witch our even Dropped from a rainhow in the skies and glowing from green mother earth Like tragments of that heavenly birth methinks that when the fairles first within their magic rings rehearsed Each antic dance, in grace and hus and shape they must have looked like you.

Near shady wall a rose once grew Budded and blossomed in God's bree Watered and few by morning dew Shedding its sweetness day night.

As it grow and blossomed, fatr and tall Slowly rising to lottler height, it came to a crevice in the wall Through which there shone a beam of light. Onward it crept with added strength.
With never a thought of fear or pride:
And it followed the light through the And unfolded itself on the other side

The light, the dew, the broadening

View, dew, the broadering view, Were found the same as they were before; t lost itself in beauties new.
Breathing its fractance more and more. Shall claim of death cause us And make our courage faint or fail fay, let us faith and hops receive. The rose still grows beyond the wall

Contering fragrance far and wide. Just as it did in days of yore: Just as it did on the other side: Just as it will forever more. — 34 f. B.
